

An Introduction to the Structured TEACCHing Principles—an approach to working with autistic students

Led by Gill Matthews,
Class Teacher, Springwood Campus.

Gill is a TEACCH Certified Advanced Consultant and an experienced
Teacher of students with Autism.

The TEACCH method is a structured form of teaching that focuses on developmental needs, interests, and skills to develop autonomy.

During this session you will begin to understand;

- The evidence based research behind the structured TEACCHing principles
- The learning styles of autistic students.
- How the strengths and challenges within these learning styles can be supported by the structure of the physical environment, visual timetables, work/activity systems and visually structured activities.
